MINTS Ministry Model

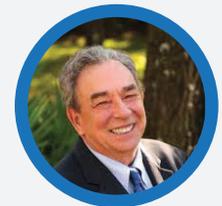

The Need: The biggest need of the modern Christian church is a trained, motivated and educated leadership that equips the people in the churches. From 1960 to 1980 the evangelical church grew from 25 million to 715 million, a 28-fold increase. This massive growth resulted in many churches having untrained pastors and leaders. By 2000 there were 2,000,000 third-world pastors, but less than 5% (100,000) had any Bible training.

Who we train: We work with motivated indigenous leaders who are eager to teach their own people and who seek both a short term and a long term academic structure for training.

Unique method: Rather than bringing students to the US for training, or offering random seminars we establish financially self-sufficient, indigenously owned-and-operated training centers/seminaries in the language and culture of the local people.

How we grow: Key to the missionary purpose of MINTS is the requirement that graduates start new study centers in their regions, languages, and spheres of influence.

Why Partner with MINTS? MINTS is effective. Jesus has shown that ministry is people. Once established, 1 study center yields 10 new pastors annually, each who average 100 new church members annually. Multiply this by 500+ centers and half a million people are being cared for by trained Christian leaders this year and the number will grow next year. Join us for the world!

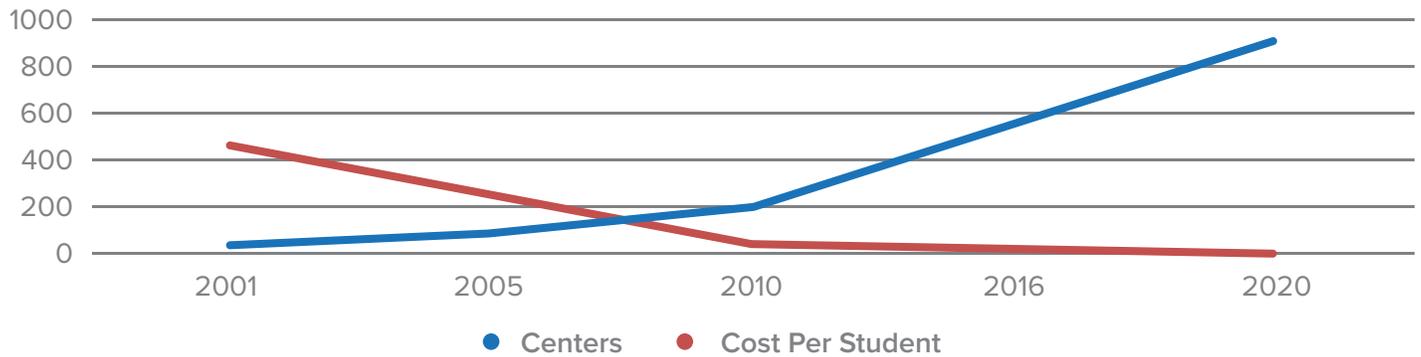

“MINTS is the most important seminary on the planet today”

– RC Sproul, educator, author

I have been seeking a program like MINTS for the last 20 years, one that we can use to train our own people. If MINTS didn't exist, then it is exactly what we would want to start. Rev. Turgay Ucal, Istanbul, Turkey

Growth vs Cost

- We own no buildings, classrooms or facilities.
- We are financially efficient. Worldwide we are training 15,530 students at $18 each. Using the same formula $18 compares well to the $45,110 per student that must be secured annually for the average US seminary student (Source: p. 131, table 4.3. of the ATS Factbook, 2006-07).
- We encourage nationals to charge minimal tuition for their center. The tuition collected stays in the country for their growing center. We request that half of the tuition is to be used to develop their local study center, and half is to be saved to start new centers using graduates.
- MINTS provides degrees: Certificate, AA, BA, MA, MDiv, DMin, and PhD, all in Theological Studies. Educational degrees from a US based institution are of great value in the churches of emerging nations where there is a confusing array of programs, seminars, and courses.

MINTS Success Indicators and Expansion Goals

Expansion Goals: We've never made "numbers" our goal, but have instead focused on quality and the teaching the power of "multiplication" to graduating students. Prayerfully we would like to see 46,000 students in 900 centers in 86 countries by 2020.
